Cactus achieves railway order for a subsystem to the new traffic management system for Sweden

The system is a vital part of Trafikverket's (The Swedish Transport Administration) project to improve punctuality, customer communication and capacity utilization of the rail network across Sweden. Cactus' commitment is a part of the introduction of ICONIS – the new traffic management system from Alstom Transport.

The contract surpasses EUR 10 million and is to run for eight years with the possibility of a nine-year extension in three-year intervals. The contract also includes the development and maintenance of the system. The delivery is subcontracted to Alstom Transport with Trafikverket as the end customer.

– Cactus complements our offer well and has met the extensive and technical criteria set by the specifications, says Per Öster, CEO, Alstom Transport in the Nordics.

– Our long experience in building critical railway systems in an environment of innovation and responsiveness, makes us an attractive partner, says Fredrik Bergström, CEO, Cactus.

A breakthrough

The order represents the final breakthrough in the railway sector for Cactus. In connection with the order, Cactus will move to larger premises and simultaneously look for many more colleagues who want to operate in infrastructure vital for society.

More about Cactus' railway operations

Cactus delivered the first railway system to Stockholm Public Transport (SL) already in the early 1990s. Among Cactus' customers are Nordic infrastructure owners (SL, Trafikverket and Lokaltog), as well as global players in the railway sector.

Great potential for the future also exist in the pilot systems that Cactus has been developing since 2008. Here, the Cactus control system is an integral part of Marksystem 11 for the modernization of the Swedish signal technology systems according to ERTMS L2 and conventional line segments.
